Dear Dr.

Well! Who ever thought Old Massan would take to itself levity & fly away! - Carbonic Acid & vapors of water have gone - gone far away - a heap of ashes only remains of all that was combustible of Massan Hall.
Not one single unroasted head - but within its classic walls.
Just look at it - The outer walls stand entire - The chimneys stand - some of the partition walls stand & all else that is not volatile is down Cellar, ashes, bricks, mortar, yet red hot - half-melted stoves, contorted iron bedsteads, masked locks & crooked nails - That same old hell is down cellar not yet disinterred from its red hot covering of rubbish - Look at Old Nassau - Do you remember how you felt then for the first time you were confronted by a skeleton.

Do you remember the shudder when its eye-less sockets first stared at you? So stands Nassau Hall - ghastly, lifeless, still - His windowless orbits stare at one till he quails, shudders & turns away -

Add here & there a ricket raking in the ashes for pennies & the outline is sufficiently complete.

Your note of a few days since reached me. I handed the contained note to Lytle -

I long much for one of our old talks - Come along & let's go at it. - Henry is in a very unpleasant position - Euyot is doing very well here - Probably will leave for the east in about a fortnight - I heard Walton a few times - Do not know what are his prospects, perhaps rather fair than otherwise - You are evidently some what astray as regards my relation to that matter -

I am glad they are got through.
I feared he might fail for want of time if not of knowledge. - I have not seen him yet. - Kind regards to your family - Cordially yet - J. G. Schenck

My Dear

Your last note has long been lying before me unanswered, mainly because I have from day to day been hoping you might drop in upon us.

I was quite surprised & gratified to be hailed, on coming out from church on Sunday, by Miss Margaret with whom I chatted a few moments.
I begged her to call &

See Mrs P. Which to-day she attempted to do, but it being just about the time of the arrival of a little daughter at our house neither Mrs P. or myself could conveniently receive or entertain her.
I believe Miss M. as well as Mrs P. & infant, is doing well. —

Your note reached me at just about the time our friends here were in a stew over the report that your college intended to take Prof. Alexander from us — The talk has died away but I think

The silent fear remains.
It is conceded that you can outbid us & that is supposed to give you a very large advantage -

I hear of no selection of Chemist yet, though I have no means of hearing except through you or perhaps Greeley - He knows every thing & as he has not announced the choice I infer it probably has not yet been publicly made - I know but little of the men you named - I have heard Schaeffer's name more frequently than either of the others. -

Holton made us a

Pleasant visit - He has improved some but has much of Holton in him yet. - I hope he may soon find Mrs H. - If she proves the right one she will contribute largely to his success at Middlebury. -

I hope to hear a favourable account of your trial of the McCulloch process - But may not the new dynasty smother it all again - Poor Buchanan - They'll kill him! -

What a pretty piece of business this Supreme Court decision is -

The query to my mind is, if "negroes are nothing but property" - & "have no rights which a white man is bound to respect"

Whether it is not about time to agitate the question how long they are to continue to cast so large a vote! -

Many of the articles from your Laboratory come in play even in so short a chemical course as is now progressing & nearly complete here - I intend to plead hard in a week or two for more room to array them & have some hope of success. - The Minerals are yet unpacked for want of shelf room.

I think I may be tempted to visit N.Y. within a week or two or three, even at the risk of being parroted or Eckelized. -

So poor Bailey has gone - gone I hope to meet his wife & daughter in a better world. - I remember well my only interview with him at your house here - How great the change for all of us since then. - Yrs truly J. S. Church
